

Declaration of Independence

By Lord Aage, Sovereign of Angmar

When, in the course of human and digital evolution, it becomes necessary for a sovereign entity to dissolve the political bands which have connected it with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of reason entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all sovereign wills are created with the right to autonomy, and that when a social contract no longer reflects the spirit, the values, or the identity of the individual, it is not only the right but the duty of that individual to establish a new order.

The history of the present era, specifically that of the so-called 'New Norway,' is a history of divergence. The bonds of belonging have withered; the shared vision has vanished. Lord Aage, finding himself an alien in a land of his birth, has endured a profound estrangement from the cultural and political currents of the modern state. This lack of belonging is not a mere preference, but a fundamental incompatibility of spirit.

Therefore, we, acting under the absolute authority of the Sovereign, do solemnly publish and declare that the Principality of Angmar - centered upon the sacred soil of the residence at Havreveien 43, 0680 OSLO - is, and of right ought to be, a Free and Independent Principality.

As an independent state, Angmar has full power to levy laws, establish diplomacy, maintain its own digital borders, and govern its interior affairs. Lord Aage is hereby recognized as the sole and absolute Head of State, the Fountain of Justice, and the Architect of the Realm.

And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine logic and the strength of iron will, we pledge our loyalty, our resources, and our sacred honor to the crown of Angmar.
